Know Your Bank Note

SALIENT FEATURES

On the obverse (front):

See-through registration

In the middle of the vertical band at the extreme left is the denominational numeral "500" printed as a floral design. One half of this numeral is printed on the obverse and the other half on the reverse in such a way that the two printed portions have a perfectly accurate back-to-back registration and the numeral appears as one when viewed against light.

Identification mark

A circle with intaglio print, which can be felt by touch, helps the visually impaired to identify the denomination.

Watermark

A portrait of Mahatma Gandhi, multi-directional lines and an electrolyte mark showing the denominational numeral "500" appear in this section and can be viewed better when the note is held against light.

Intaglio printing

500

Optically variable ink

The colour of the numeral "500" in the centre appears green when the note is held flat but changes to blue when it is held at an angle.

Micro-lettering

The letters "RBI" and the numeral "500" can be viewed with the help of a magnifying glass in the area between the Mahatma Gandhi portrait and the vertical band at the right.

Latent image

The vertical band above the seal of Reserve Bank of India contains a latent image showing the numeral "500" when the bank note is held horizontally at eye level.

Security thread

A vertical, 3-mm-wide, security thread with the inscriptions "भारत" in Hindi and "RBI", (normal and laterally inverted) and the colour changing from green to blue when viewed from different angles. Under ultraviolet light, the text on both sides will glow yellow. On the reverse, the thread is visible as an unbroken line when the note is held up against light.

Banks have a mandate from the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) to impound counterfeit currency immediately on detection.
